2011 Speakers Testimonials

“StarTechConf blew me away. Fantastic (and huge!) developer community that was sharp, engaged and ready to hack. Had an amazing time in sunny Santiago.”

Paul Irish, Google Chrome dev relations guy, a jQuery Team member, a lead developer of Modernizr, Yeoman, CSS3 Please and HTML5 Boilerplate.

“StarTechConf was absolutely my favorite conference to speak at in 2011. It was well run and each speaker had a translator with them the entire time (though the attendees had much better English than they let on at first). What really made it my favorite though was the people attending. I've never seen such a hunger for knowledge, and such warm, caring people. I literally had tears in my eyes when I left. An amazing experience. I highly recommend it!”

Stephanie Sullivan Rewis, founder of W3Conversions, 2011 speaker.

2011 Speakers Testimonials

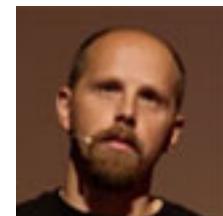

“I loved the passion of the attendees at StarTech. You could feel a genuine desire to learn and sense of appreciation for the opportunity to listen to topics delivered by great speakers. Couple that with an incredibly well-organized event, from registration to closing, and it's no wonder that I'm hoping to be invited back in the future. This, by far, has been my favorite conference to have spoken at.”

Rey Bango, Client-Web Community Program Manager for Microsoft. Editor of ScriptJunkie.com and Former jQuery Team Member.

“I had an outstanding time speaking at, and attending, StarTechConf. Great organization, lovely and knowledgeable audience. It's a conference and trip I look back at with fond memories!

Robert Nyman, Technical Evangelist for Mozilla, Editor of Mozilla Hacks.
